M. T. Lewman returned from Washington Monday.
Ed. Southard, of Indianapolis, spent Sunday among his many friends here.
Theodore Tilton gave "Heart's Ease" to a large audience at Opera Hall Tuesday night.
Miss Belle Werneke, who has been teaching school in Missouri, has returned to her home in this city.
A freight train was derailed on the I. & St. L. R. R., Monday, near Reno, which caused a delay of trains Tuesday morning.
The management of the Indianapolis, Decatur and Springfield road announces that on Monday February 9 (the road will be opened for passenger and freight traffic between Indianapolis and Decatur.

Two derricks used in the Vandavia company's quarry, at Limesdale, fell Monday, one man, named Mike Geary, being nearly crushed to death. He is in a critical condition, but it is thought that with care, he may recover.
Eld. A. J. Frank returned from Spencer last Thursday. He had preached there just one month in a protracted meeting. During this meeting there were 109 additions made to the church. He closed with a crowded house and great success.
Two persons were burned to death in this county on the same day, Jan. 28—Miss Emma Cox, in Marion township, and a little five-year-old son of Milton Hathaway, of Reelsville, (an account of which can be found in the Washington township correspondence.) Both caught fire while standing in front of an open fire-place.

A man from Hendricks County was in the city Saturday, looking for a purchaser for an interest in a gold mine which he claims to have discovered in the vicinity of Coatesville. He wants a partner who will do the work while he attends the shipment, etc. Being a printer, he intimated to THE STAR printers that he intended to send them a carload of "dust," he also asked for some old exchanges, and the boys flew to do his bidding. When their car-load is delivered the boys will probably go on another strike—when it does arrive.
The Spencer correspondent in the Indianapolis Journal of Jan. 31, says: Spencer is receiving some substantial additions to its population in the shape of some good business men. Mr. C. W. Alburt, who has been doing a large dry goods and carpet business in Greencastle, has opened out a fine store here, in the most modern style, and Mr. J. R. Greene, also a Greencastle man, together with Mr. J. M. Sadler and C. R. Ellis, under the firm name of Sadler, Greene & Co., have purchased the grocery stock of J. W. Beem, and opened a wholesale and retail grocery business in Mr. Beem's building, with a branch retail house on the south side, the two to be connected by telephone.

Washington Township.
Editor STAR—As our township has not been represented in your columns, we ask space for a few jottings, because we are of the opinion that (considering our many advantages here,) this part of the country might be termed the "hub" of the universe. We are pained to record the sad accident that befell the little five-year-old son of Milton Hathaway, of Reelsville. On last Tuesday while playing near the grate, his clothes caught fire and burned him fatally. He lingered until the next day when death released the poor little fellow. The community deeply sympathize with the bereaved parents. Gus Person has been confined to his bed by sickness for several days, owing to an attack of lung fever. Jesse Coltharp is reported convalescing. Rev. Crews, of Coatesville, officiated at the Union church last Sabbath. The roads are miserable yet, in spite of rain and mud, business is brisk. Reel & O'Neal, the millers, continue shipping flour. Huffman and Foster, the competing dry goods men both enjoy a good trade. Miss Nannie Utterback, the popular dress-maker is kept busy supplying the many demands for nice fitting and splendidly trimmed dresses. Emigration from this place to Kansas has received another impetus, and among the number who talk of going are George Foster, one of the most thorough business men of Putnam county, also Squire Boon and Joe Furney, both substantial farmers. Zeke Ratcliff is the "boss" fur buyer, but smells skunkish after a successful day's buying. Bill Zebe is the crack shot we think. He can shoot more rabbits with his famous breech loader than any body. And now the "soft" voice of the many township officers are heard in the land. J. R. Lister and Martin Murphy both came forward, with 100 cents to have their names attached to THE STAR's roll of honor; that's right gentlemen, you may look for good "craps" next year.

Madison Township.
Some fine weather the past few days. Roads very bad yet. Our school teacher was sick last week. Some trade in this corner. William Dills sold his cows and heifers to Joseph Bament. Frank Tucker is still buying hogs—a land trade also. Oliver Houck, of Washington tp., was working on his farm here last week. Mr. Meletus Peterson and wife, of Montgomery county have been visiting relatives in this vicinity. James Houck is going to move among us in the spring. E. H. Houck expects to move also. Denman Wood has bought a shot-gun—look out for game. Everybody takes THE STAR.

Oh! the beautiful mud! When it is looking fine in this section. The political parties already show signs of returning life. Miss Maude Davis has gone to live with Dr. Stone and wife, of Bainbridge. Subscribe for THE STAR, be temperate and you will be happy. The social at the residence of Mr. Smyth was the "boss" of the season. The Dry Branch Martial Band is noisy if not harmoniously musical. Messrs Wright and Robinson were too much for their opponents at Walnut Valley Literary Society. Question—Resolved, "That the Bible teaches endless punishment," they having the negative. Riley Springer's negro cabin was demolished the other night by some one felling a tree on it—Wonder who did it? Messrs. Thompson and Foxworthy are to wield the sword of argument against Messrs King and Mills, of New Maysville, on the question—Resolved, That capital punishment should be abolished. Saturday, Feb. 16, at Centre School House, Floyd township. OBSERVER.

New Maysville.
Mr. Editor—Having seen nothing in your columns from our place for some time, I thought I would send you a few items. Excitement is running high over the location of a new road to run from New Maysville to Fort Red, there being two or three routes in view, and public sentiment is considerably divided as to which is the best. John Oakley has returned from Missouri where he has been prospecting, and thinks he will move there soon. The joint discussion at Bidle school house on the merits of Capital Punishment, came off per agreement. The question as stated was: "Resolved, That the law of Capital Punishment should be abolished in the United States." Mills and King affirmed. Carter and Bidle opposed. Decision in favor of the affirmative. Col. Hawn is still very poorly. Rev. A. S. Mayhall occupies the pulpit of the Baptist Church in the absence of the regular pastor. Jas. McMurtry, Sr., was in town last week. The township school will close about the 10th of March—length of term 113 days—daily compensation of teachers $1.75. Township candidates are about ripe; they are quite numerous, and quite friendly. The Sunday School is a thing of the past. The trouble grew out of the election of a teacher. There seems to have been two factions; the successful party met the next Sunday with a good attendance and it was thought things were going to prosper; but lo! the other party have locked the doors, hence the trouble. Brother, think twice before you speak next time. There was but one revolver in the church and that was carried by a member. A bit of advice: Repent, subscribe for THE STAR and be happy.

A Floyd Township Republican on the "Exodus Business."
I, Daniel D. Thompson, of Floyd township, resident of Floyd Township for some years. And have been a farmer for nineteen years of the time, but now have a small tract of land in town and not more than half an acre. I keep myself and son employed by being trying ever since last August to rent land to tend in corn, but have failed to find any. I am considered by those for whom I have cultivated land as a successful corn raiser. Now, if I have five hundred acres of land in Floyd township, and twenty vacant houses, I would rent them to good men both Republicans and Democrats in less than two weeks, and could hire half a dozen good respectable white men at fifty cents a day in less than two hours. If any Republican says he can not hire a white man to do his labor—sufficient to keep soul and body together. Now, we would like to hear from every township in the county. We would like to know how many acres of land they have not taken up by tenants. I think that it is now high time that there was an agent appointed to find homes for the poor white laborers that we consider far superior to the black. Now, I have no objection to the negro coming here at his own free will, but not for political purposes, as we think they are coming; and if that be the case, my opinion is that the majority of the Republicans will stay away from the polls or vote the Democratic ticket. As a Republican, I think we have better have not brought the negroes here until after 1880 because it is not the wish of the majority of the Republican party. It is only those who are seeking office appointments from the Government, who are not willing to pay for white labor. As a Republican I always like a white sheep better than a black one. I do not think that the poor innocent negroes are to blame for their coming here but I am afraid that it is the leaders of the Republican party who are to blame for the exodus business. In conclusion, I will say that we are going to have a negro family for neighbors because my brother-in-law, E. H. Wilkinson, on the twenty-first of December last, at 10 o'clock a. m., at my fire place, (and I was seated on one side and the members of my family sitting around) when he said he would get a negro and then "by jake," he could make him do anything he wanted him to do. As Mr. Wilkinson is a man of his word, we expect them on hand the first of March; he has a right to bring them if he chooses, but I don't think they will be very popular neighbors, though we will treat them the best that we can. I would much rather have my children go to school with white children if I had my choice. A poor man's friend and a Republican.

Philip Carney, a saloon keeper on Jersey City Heights, met Nellie Smith at a picnic in Mersele's Grove last summer. She promised to become his wife. The time was fixed for the marriage, and Mr. Carney hired a house and furnished it. On Wednesday afternoon he went to Miss Smith's house to take her to the minister's. Just as Miss Smith was about entering the carriage, it is said, another vehicle was driven up, and a young man sprang out and entered into a whispered conversation with the lady, and then she entered the carriage with the last corner and the pair drove off. That evening Carney was informed by Miss Smith's mother that her daughter had married the other man, who was an earlier lover. Carney does not know what to do with his house and furniture.

The Average Ages of Animals.
The average of cats is 15 years; of squirrels and hares, 7 and 8 years; a dog lives 50 years; rabbits 7; a bear rarely exceeds 20; a wolf 20, a fox 14 to 16; lions are long-lived, the one known by name of Pompey living to the age of 70. Elephants have been known to live to the age of 400 years. When Alexander the Great had conquered Porus, King of India, he took a great Elephant which had fought valiantly for the King, and named him Ajax, dedicated him to the sun and let him go with this inscription: "Alexander, the son of Jupiter, dedicated Ajax to the Sun." The Elephant was found with this inscription 350 years after. Pigs have been known to live to the age of 20, and the rhinoceros to 29; a horse has been known to live to the age of 62, but average 25 to 30; camels sometimes live to the age of 100; stags are very long-lived; sheep seldom exceed the age of 10; cows live about 15 years. Cuvier considers it probable that whales sometimes live 1,000 years. The Dolphin and porpoise attain the age of 30; an eagle died in Vienna at the age of 104; ravens have frequently reached the age of 100; swans have been known to live to the age of 300. Mr. Materton has the skeleton of a swan that attained the age of 200. Pelicans are long-lived. A tortoise has been known to live to the age of 107 years.

THE STAR.

FRANK A. ARNOLD, Editor and Proprietor

Saturday, Feb. 7, 1880

The readers of THE STAR will please bear in mind that we do not hold ourselves accountable for or endorse the opinions of correspondents published in these columns. We simply give space to our correspondents that the people may learn what the thoughts of their neighbors are.

ENTERED at the Postoffice, Greencastle, Ind., as second class mail matter.

CONGRESS has been in session two months, and all the real work it has accomplished could have been done in a week.

THE President Wednesday appointed Charles L. Holstein, of Indianapolis United States District Attorney, in place of Col. Nelson Trusler deceased.

THE famine in Ireland grows worse daily, although thousands of dollars are contributed daily to their relief. The New York Herald started a list of contributions with the magnanimous sum of $100,000.

THE remarkably mild winter experienced on this continent seems to be compensated by a remarkably cold one in Europe. The weather there is extremely severe. The Seine, at Paris, is full of ice, and the people of that city are at their wits' end to keep warm. Lake Zurich is frozen over, for the first time in a century, and other lakes in Switzerland which scarcely freeze once in a generation are now covered with ice.

For the past month there has been a grand temperance revival in progress in this city. Nightly the Blue Ribbon Hall, the Court room and Opera House have each in their turn been crowded with enthusiastic and appreciative listeners and eloquent speakers. These meetings have mostly all been conducted in a spirit consistent with their motto—"Malice toward none, charity for all." There seems to be a belief among the temperance people that the only way to eradicate intemperance from the land is to educate public sentiment up to such a point that there will be no demand for intoxicating liquors. Once in a while a speaker sees fit to attack, and in a frenzied manner, denounce liquor sellers as the prime cause of all the evil resulting from intemperance; but it is only when they forget that Francis Murphy—an ex-saloonkeeper—was the man who inaugurated the Blue Ribbon movement, which has spread its benign influence from sea to sea, and which has been so beneficial in its results. We do not seek to uphold or shield the liquor traffic, but still, we see no reason why liquor dealers, so long as their business is legalized by law, should be maliciously slandered. It was by avoiding malice and advocating "charity for all" that past success has been achieved, and we hope that, by a further advocacy of temperance in the same charitable spirit, the future success of the cause may be so great that intemperance may be looked upon as an evil of the past, and that legends may be handed down to the children of the future which will so purify their minds and mould their characters that they may forever shun intemperance as a great evil driven from the land by their ancestors.

An Indian maiden has been driven out by her tribe, in Oregon, because she married a Chinaman. A San Francisco Chinaman has lost the respect of his countrymen by marrying a negro woman. A Virginia mob whipped a negro for marrying a white woman.

Our Washington Letter.

Monday, Feb. 2, 1880.

Leaving home Wednesday afternoon of last week, by "command" of the Exodus Investigating Committee of the United States Senate, I arrived here on the following Friday morning, and reported to that august body, composed of Senators Voorhees, Windom, Vance, Blair and Pendleton. The sessions of the committee are held in a one story unpretentious frame building about five squares from the Capitol, but the investigation, unlike the building, is assuming pretentious proportions. Some seventy-five or eighty witnesses have been summoned to appear and testify, besides the score or more who have already given in their evidence. So far but two of the Greencastle witnesses have testified, to wit: Messrs. M. T. Lewman and Oscar Werneke. The sum and substance of their testimony, in its shortest form is about as follows:

Mr. M. T. Lewman, Sheriff of Putnam county, testified that the first intimation he had of the exodus was an editorial in the Greencastle (Putnam county) Banner, which said that Indiana would or could be carried for the Republican party by the importation of negroes from the South. A circular, written by Langsdale, the editor and signed by Rev. J. H. Clay, was purchased by Mr. Lewman from one of the emigrants for $7. This held out ridiculous prices to the negroes for labor, and recited that there was an enormous demand for them in Indiana. It had been circulated among the negroes in North Carolina, dated July 7, and insisted that they should reach Indiana during the fall and winter of 1879. The circular was identified by O. Werneke, at that time an employee in the Greencastle Banner office, where it was printed, and put in evidence. Mr. Lewman stated also that a negro from Kingston, N. C. named Heath, thinking he was a Republican, told him that Indiana was to be colonized with negroes from the South before the 18th of next May, so as to carry the State for the Republicans. He gave as a reason for the payment of the fare of the exodusters by others than themselves that not any negroes who owned stock or property in North Carolina could be beguiled from their homes. Mr. Lewman corroborated the foregoing testimony as to the general destitution of the exodusters since their arrival in Indiana, and was on the stand when the committee adjourned.

On Saturday morning the examination of Sheriff Lewman was resumed.

He testified in reply to questions by Voorhees that he met and had an interview with a colored man named Heath, who came in the mail-car from Washington to Greencastle over the Vandalia road. The mail route agent's name was Reynolds. Heath told the witness the people on the car had treated him kindly. Heath was trying to find a location for colored emigrants, and told the witness his object, in the first place was to get to Kansas, but at Washington, Adams, secretary of the Emigrant Aid Society, asked him to stop at Indianapolis. He had letters to Judge Martindale and Colonel Holloway, prominent Indiana Republicans. One reason for the colored people leaving North Carolina was that their friends in Washington desired as many of them as possible to get out of North Carolina and into Indiana before the census was taken, about May 1st, so as to decrease the representation of North Carolina and increase that of Indiana. Ten thousand intended to come. Heath supposed when he was making his statements the witness was a Republican. He said the Republicans had proposed to pay half the expenses of the trip. The witness could not remember any name mentioned except that of Adams. On cross-examination the witness stated that his county is well settled up. There is no demand for labor there. The dissatisfaction felt on the account of the emigration is not because of the emigrants' color, but because they reach there destitute and have to be supported by the county, and because they overstock the labor market. There is an ill-feeling among the laborers and both political parties. It sometimes takes the shape of threats. One man who hired some of these negroes had his barn burned a few days later. This matter was before the grand jury. The witness preferred on that account, not to speak of it. There were bad men of both parties there. Perhaps the Democrats had burned the barn. He could not say whether this conduct would have the effect of deterring the people from hiring the emigrants and so caused it to appear that there was no demand for labor. He met Heath at the depot when he came on the train, and representing himself as a Republican got into conversation with him. He told Heath the Republicans wanted a good many negroes to come to Indiana. Heath said there was no doubt they could get all they wanted, but it would be necessary to pay half of their expenses, because those that had horses would not leave home, and those without horses could not afford the expense. The witness got the impression that no arrangements had yet been made whereby their expenses were to be paid. Heath found fault with the store-order system of pay in North Carolina. The next morning the witness met Mr. Bridges, a Democrat, who said that he had seen Heath and informed him that he (Heath) had fallen into the hands of a Democrat instead of a Republican, the night before. Heath thereupon hurriedly left town. Some of the negroes desired to return home. Heath had handed the witness three strips of paper. At Mr. Voorhees's request the witness read what was on the slips, as follows: "Postmaster Langsdale and Mr. Clay, colored, at Greencastle, Putnam county, on the Terre Haute railroad, provide for this gentleman. More are coming." On the back was: "Union Depot Mail Office, Reynolds. J. M. Adams, 1,338 V. st. N. W." It is necessary for a person to dissimulate in order to obtain information from suspicious characters. The dissatisfaction in the county is not confined to Democrats, but is felt by many Republicans, especially among the laboring class.

Heath will be summoned as a witness.

On Saturday evening Sheriff Lewman and Oscar Werneke took the train for home, via Pittsburg. Of the remainder of the Greencastle colony in Washington, it is impossible to give any definite information as to when they will be examined, there being a small army of witnesses here to testify before the committee.

Washington city is all novelty to Western people on their first visit. The citizens, or a large proportion of them at least, are migratory, and consist of government servants and those seeking service with the government. An example of this is the fact that in the Treasury Department alone, over 3,000 clerks are employed, and there are fully as many here seeking positions in that department. The buildings of the city may almost be divided into three classes: Government buildings, hotels or boarding houses and saloons or restaurants. Of course there are business houses, private residences, etc., but they are but a small per cent. of the whole.

The swell mob is prominent here and is heartily despised by people visiting the Capital from west of the Alleghenies. A portion of this mob can be seen at almost any hour of the day—he is generally short and so thin that to make a respectable sized shadow it would be necessary to wrap him in a half dozen good sheep-skins. His most noticeable garment is his cap, a small, bowl-shaped affair, about the size of a coffee cup, which is stuck upon the back of his head; and his nose is straddled by a pair of eye glasses. You will find him perched on top of a monstrous velocipede, with a six-foot front wheel and a one-foot wheel behind—a perfect picture of half-idiotic uselessness. Another variety of the swell mob parades in public in pairs, mounted on a dray-like vehicle with four wheels, without springs, the parties seated back to back, and driving a tandem team.

The ladies of Washington are alike for style, extravagance and eye-glasses. It is also noticeable that they are a power in the national legislation, if the signs and the number of ladies swarming in and about the Capitol during the sessions of the houses are circumstances proving this allegation. In fact, people posted in the devious ways of Washington claim that the women are a full half of the power required to "help work the machine."

Last Saturday, on invitation of Hon. R. J. Bright, Sergeant at arms of the Senate, a goodly portion of the Hoosier colony in the city, visited Mt. Vernon. The day was damp and raw, but the whole-souled hospitality of Mr. Bright warmed up the company, and no day could have been spent more pleasantly and profitably. The trip was made on the boat "W. W. Cocoran," with Capt. Blake, one of nature's noblemen in command. At Mt. Vernon all the points of interest were visited—the old tomb of Washington and the tomb where the remains now rest, enclosed in a marble casket; then the mansion of Mary's room was visited, where a large proportion of the original furniture still occupies the apartments as of yore. The room in which Washington died contains the bed upon which he reclined when his spirit departed, and also the stand which stood at the bed-side to hold the medicines given him during that last illness. Martha Washington's room also contained much of the original furniture, and the same is true of LaFayette's room, the State dining hall, and other portions of the mansion. Years ago, before the property was purchased by the Mt. Vernon Association, relic hunters marred and defaced portions of the house and furniture, but now nothing of the kind is allowed. During the visit our party lunched in Washington's old family dining room, and a nice lunch it was—everything was clean, fresh and sweet, served in the best manner, and partaken of as only possible on such occasion and at such a place.

Hon. Dr. Gilbert De La Matry, member from the Putnam County District, was on the boat during the down trip, having an engagement to preach in Virginia on the following day, so we parted company at Mt. Vernon. The Doctor says that nothing will be accomplished during the present session of Congress, except routine business, and is ill pleased with future prospects.

An addition to the Indiana colony, consisting of Gen. Manson and others, is expected to arrive in a few days.

According to the Moscow Gazette, the following curious incident occurred in St. Petersburg a few days ago: "Rigorous efforts are being made by the Russian ecclesiastical authorities to counteract the spread of Nihilism. One of the priests attached to the Isaac Cathedral lately delivered a sermon in condemnation of the revolutionary propagandists, and a day or two afterward he was surprised to receive at his house a visit from three young men who express a great desire to make his personal acquaintance. The priest suspected that something was wrong, and before asking them in to attend the precaution of sending for an attendant to be present during the interview. In the presence of this person the three men informed the priest that, in his sermon delivered in the Isaac Cathedral, he had insulted 'the better representative of the young generation,' and that they had come to ask him never to repeat anything of the kind again. On the priest replying that he should always preach what his conscience dictated, one of the trio drew a revolver from his pocket and leveled it at the priest. Fortunately the attendant seized the would-be assassin in time and knocked the weapon out of his hand. The other two attempted a rescue, but all the servants in the house making their appearance, the better representatives of the rising generation were marched off to the police station."

A stage load of passengers were startled when a desperado brandished a knife and swore that he would kill the driver; and they laughed when the driver savagely drew an old, black pipe, and the scared desperado jumped into a pond to escape the bullet.

DR. SYKES' CURE FOR CATARRH

TARRH

Catarrh Twenty Years. Developed to Lungs.

Cured in the fall and winter of 1875, after trying a variety of remedies. His catarrh troubles were much increased by services and exposure of the war, and were over twenty years duration, developing finally to the lungs, causing great uneasiness and considerable alarm. His improvement was slow, but steady—only took one bad cold through the winter, but was subject to frequent and severe colds before. After using six bottles "Sykes' Cure," he paid for six more and after using them felt entirely well, but to make assurance doubly sure he used three more, ending of gradually according to directions. This case is another of our citizens who now, and was then, connected with the "Chicago Gas Co." 75 Dearborn street, residence 140 S. Green. His name is M. V. Taylor, and he is known as the "Water Man." For more particulars see the "Water Man" advertisement.

THE STAR. CITY AND COUNTY

North Greencastle.

Miss Bettie Eads is visiting her sister, Mrs. Clay Osborne, near Danville, this week. Those who went to Brick Chapel Tuesday night, to start a temperance boom, were: Misses Adeha and Johanna Snyder, Miss Emma Graham and Miss Mottie Walters. We did not learn the names of all the gentlemen who went, but we do know that Wm. King, whose deep bass voice night after night listening multitudes at temperance meeting, was one of the number. They took two hacks and went out there to reform that God-forsaken place—to lift up the fallen in that community; to soothe, as it were, with their sweet, entrancing, angelic, rapturous and heavenly strains, the soul of the inebriate, and induce him to rise up in all the grandeur of his magnificent manhood and cast off the yoke of King Alcohol. That was the object of the expedition—a noble object. They had an interesting meeting, so we hear, and we hope the seed sown by them may take root deep in the hearts of the people there, and that this effort may result in great and lasting good. They had a smash-up on the return trip, which, however, resulted in no bodily injury to any one. Toddy Smiley, little son of Smith Smiley, was seriously injured, last week, by a club in the hands of Paul Hill, who struck him in the face. Twenty-five negroes are quartered in a small house in this part of the city, and not one of them has had a day's work since arriving from the Sunny South. How perfect was the conception of this "exodus" movement. These negroes came here before the election, and even had they the desire, they have not the means, to return to their southern homes until after the election is over. It was amusing to notice the abrupt manner in which the temperance meeting was brought to a close by the chairman, Wednesday night. The speakers were devoting considerable attention to THE STAR when the chairman "thought it was time to bring the meeting to a close." THE STAR was getting too popular, and it was "time to close," anyhow. Judge Bachelder is entitled to the credit for the present temperance revival, as he was the first to suggest it.

South Greencastle.

A new crossing is being laid across south Depot street. Cold Bro's have fitted up the old livery stable and will hereafter keep their horses there. The gutters are being cleaned in this vicinity. Fox Ridge is now frozen over so that people can walk about, but when it thaws out skills will be in demand. Charley McCoy says: "If you see a little black woolly dog about 1½ feet high, fetch it to the Trade Emporium and get rewarded." Mrs. Jackson, of Danville, who has been visiting here for some time, has returned to her home. The minstrel troupe has received its wardrobe and outfit complete. A rumor that a new saloon is to be started in the South End is not good news to temperance people, and serves to encourage the idea that the present "revival" has a great deal of "boom" about it. Charley Grogan is booming for City Marshal. Hi Callender's speech at temperance meeting, Wednesday night, was received with unusually uproarious and continuous applause. Also that of Brother Thos. Martin. Will a temperance club be started in this end? "If not, why not?"

Saturday Night's Temperance Meeting.

The Opera House was crowded Saturday night, and a number of persons signed the pledge. The meeting was conducted by Mr. Smith Smiley, in a creditable manner. Speeches were made by Rev. O. P. Badger, Rev. Grimm, Jas. Lynch, Judge Bachelder and Charles Anderson. Mr. Badger gave some apt illustrations, comparing intemperance to a famine, his description of which was graphic. Mr. Grimm opened his speech by reviewing the growth of the temperance cause. The first temperance movement of which any account could be had was started in New York. "The United States has the honor of being the first country to strike for liberty both in body and soul: First, by throwing of the British yoke, and then struggling (with some prospect for success) to cast off the yoke of King Alcohol." Judge Bachelder then delivered a forcible argument against intemperance. Lynch's speech was "to the point," but he was frequently interrupted by unusual applause, which embarrassed him to a certain extent. Chas. Anderson responded to a call and gave some "experience," warning the young against the first glass. Mr. Anderson is a good speaker, and his words had a good effect. Miss Etta Rhodes rendered a declamation, by special request, which she had declaimed on two former occasions. Her style of delivery is highly appreciated, as evidenced by the numerous calls made for her declamation. The music at this meeting was splendid, the instrumental music being furnished by an organ, a flute and a violin. Wm. Cochran sang "Somebody Waiting" and responded to an encore.

The meeting was dismissed by Rev. Grimm.

Carpentersville.

Pickett's team commenced hauling logs again the 24th of this month. They have been idle for some time on account of the mud. Four families moved this week. Everybody in Carpentersville has been on the move except Uncle Billy and one or two others. Prof. Lemmon's school closes the 6th of this month. He goes to Asbury to complete his studies but will return and teach three months in the Spring. Mr. Young has been visiting at Fincastle this week. The Prosecuting Attorney stirred things pretty lively here last week. Mr. S. O. Pearcey is very sick at this time with something like bronchitis. There is considerable talk of graveling the road from Koachdale through here to Bainbridge. Putnam county is badly behind in gravel roads; it is about time our citizens were awakening to the fact that it is far cheaper to build good gravel roads than to try to get through mud a foot deep for six months in the year. There is talk of a wedding north west of here in a few days. Robt. Button and John Edwards have exchanged farms and will move in a few days. J. B. Foshier has shipped several chester white pigs and white Holland turkeys in the last few days. One pig was shipped to Buchanan county, Mo. Eli Anderson is doing a lively business in blacksmithing and gunsmithing. Mr. Thomas Carter has moved his family to Danville, Illa. Lon. is fireman on the C. & V. Our amateur company is talking of playing "Ten Nights in a Bar Room."

Fern Station.

The wheat crop is splendid and a large crop sown. Farmers, open your sugar camps. Peter Stoner has bought half of the Philip Frank Farm. James Skelton has rented John Reed's farm. There will be a great amount of hauling to do in this part of the township when the roads get in a good condition owing to the past winter. Harry Helton is on the sick list. Business is lively at Fern Station. We want a post office at Fern. Mrs. Mollie Alspaugh is still in a dangerous condition. Eli Krubacker is visiting at his father's. Jim Lancaster is again employed by Alfred Hirst to superintend the stave business. Jim Aker is a candidate. L. B. Smith is getting out staves on Mr. Harvey Wright's farm. Mr. John Moss will furnish rock for the culvert west of Fern. We have no exodusters at our place yet and do not want any here. We have plenty of white labor yet to employ. Dan Devore is feeding cattle for Andrew Lockridge. The I. & St. L. railroad will put up a temporary trussel over snake creek. W. M. Thomas and Amos Wells will be candidates before the Democratic convention for trustees of Madison township. Mrs. Plummer has a beautiful farm just north of Fern. Hi Burnett and sister, from Kansas, are visiting in this township. Preaching at the Christian church, on Sunday, by Elder Williams, of Lena. Joe Furney has sold out and will move to Kansas. Jess Williams is one of the most accommodating gentlemen in the township.

Asbury University.

The lecture next Sunday will be by Prof. DeMotte. The Senior Preparatory class held a social on Thursday evening, at Mr. Jenkins' residence. John Jones, after an absence of some weeks, has returned to college. It has been ascertained by official investigation that only six members of the Preparatory department chew tobacco. Miss Maude Allison, class 84, has been visiting at Brazil. The First Preps. will soon indulge in another social. John Lockridge, of 85, has been wrestling with the measles. John Stiffy has been sick. Freshmen are very gallant. This fact was demonstrated at lecture last Sunday. Examination has been gnawing at the vitals of the Freshmen during the past week. A company of young ladies has been organized for the purpose of gymnastic drill. They will have uniforms, officers, &c. John White, '85, has the reputation of being the best map drawer in the Preparatory department. Prof. Earp visited the State University, Monday. J. W. Riley, the poet, was at chapel on Tuesday morning and recited some of his poems. James H. Neff is very sick. Walker Schell, an old Asbury student, made us a flying visit Saturday. Charley Ketcham visited Bloomington this week. Mr. Schurr, who was in college last term, has been appointed assistant in the Muncie High school. Prof. J. C. Ridpath has been selected to deliver the address before the students of the University of Michigan February 22. Rev. J. W. Harris, of Covington, Ind., chaplain of the Indiana department of the G. A. R., conducted the services at the University Friday morning. Chaplain Harris was a member of the class of '78. Ralph Rogers was "experimenting" with an alcoholic lamp in the laboratory, Tuesday, when it exploded, the burning fluid flying in his face and burning him severely. "Eber" Overstreet, of Spencer, came up to Greencastle last week to see how his brother (?) was getting along.

Bainbridge.

We are having fine winter weather this week. Six or eight teams are hauling logs for Mr. Bayne off of Frank Darnall's farm near Morton. Mrs. Josephine Darnall is having a severe time with rheumatic pains in her limbs. James Taylor living east of here is very low with consumption and perhaps before this reaches our readers he will be in his grave. Mr. Higgins Lane has returned from Kentucky where she has been visiting friends for some time. Henry Stone, of Kentucky, brother of Dr. and S. J. Stone, was here last week. Mr. Ellis has sold his house and lot to John Allison for $1,000. Rev. Smith and David Preston, of Greencastle, have been holding protracted meetings here the last week. Milt Darnall is talked of as Republican candidate for township trustee. Subscribe for THE STAR and be happy; one dollar pays the bill. Joseph Smith, jr., has gone to Centralia, Ill. Elder Greathouse will preach at Malta the second Sunday in February, at 7 o'clock P. M. We had a spelling match at Malta last week with such good success that the children will expect another soon. The candidates out for assessor are: H. T. Burton, Geo. Welch, James Smith and Father Alspaugh. There is not a negro living within four miles of us in any direction. Wm. ## Infanticide.

A Young Colored Girl Gives Birth to an Illegitimate Child and then Kills It.

On Tuesday night, this city was thrown into considerable excitement by the report that a colored girl named Rosa Sellers had given birth to a child and then killed it. The girl was employed at the boarding house of Mrs. Noe, on South Jackson street, and the child was found secreted under a stairway in the cellar of the house. The coroner being immediately called, found the child hid away under the stairway. The left side of its face was bruised, and the bones of the head crushed. There were spots of blood in the cellar and prints in the wall where some one had rubbed their bloody hands. Mr. Frazier, (the coroner) then took the body of the child to Dr. Preston's Office, where an inquest was held.

The next day the examination was held before Coroner Frazier, where the following facts were gleaned from the witnesses.

Mrs. Noe testified that Rosa Sellers had lived at her house since the 10th of September. "On Tuesday morning she came to my house and seemed very sick; she laid for a long time upon the kitchen floor. After a while she got up and went down in the cellar. While she was in the cellar her folks came for her in a buggy. I met her as she came out of the cellar, and pinned a shawl around her head. That night (Tuesday) feeling suspicious I went into the cellar and found the child. I then informed the officers. No one went into the cellar before the officers arrived.

Rosa Sellers, being duly sworn, said: I am about 17 or 18 years old; born in North Carolina. Lived in Greencastle three years. I have been living at Mrs. Noe's five months. I was at Mrs. Noe's on Tuesday at 10:30 a. m. Was sick and had to lie down; while I was lying down on the floor Mrs. Noe went up stairs. I then went down in the cellar, where the baby was born. I left it in the cellar, and intended to go and get mother and show it to her. On returning to the cellar the second time, I must have tramped on it as it was dark in the cellar. When I tramped on it, I took and put it under the stairs. David Barber is the father of it. He promised to marry me; came to see me once or twice a week. He told me to hide it. I never touched the baby after it was born. I went out; did not think it was alive—it made no noise.

Dr. H. R. Pitchlynn: I know the girl who came to my office. Suppose it was Rosie Sellers. On Tuesday morning at 7 o'clock she came to my office. I suspected that she was pregnant; told her to go home. Think she had promontory symptoms then. I gave her ½ grain of morphine, 2 ounces of water to act as antidote.

Dr. G. W. Bence: Examined the body of the dead child. I think it came to its death through violence; the bones were probably crushed on smooth surface. The fact that the lungs floated on water is evidence that the child once breathed.

David Barber, father of the child, testified as follows: "I live in Greencastle; have been here about three years; have known Rosa Sellers about two years; have visited her during that time; I knew she was pregnant; had no conversation with her upon the subject; I have had improper intercourse with her; I never told her to conceal or hide it."

Barber was acquitted on the charge of an accessory to the crime. The coroner, after having heard the evidence, brought in the following verdict: "After having heard the evidence and examined the body, I do find that the deceased came to its death by wounds inflicted on its body by the hands of its mother, one Rose Sellers, said wounds being inflicted upon the head and face and having caused instant and immediate death."

The girl is confined to her bed a present, being scarcely able to move. Her trial will come off before the next term of the Putnam Circuit Court.

Lena.

Mr. Madison, the new proprietor of our flouring mill has moved his family here. The blacksmith's anvil continuously rings since the roads healed over. Miss Rose Murphy, who is teaching the Snow school, gave a spelling last Friday night. The Lena school was invited, but failed to receive the invitation in time to attend. Some of Lena's citizens attended the temperance meetings in Greencastle last week. Lena needs a blue ribbon club; there is room for reform. The meeting at Carbon is progressing. Some of our citizens are attending. Bish. Hays, of Greencastle, was in town Tuesday, hunting a cook. John Leatherman will move to Nebraska in a week or so. A young lady in our village says her guardian angel is about to leave her. Bro. Williams has moved into the Montez property, near the church. Bill Beck had a horse killed by the cars one day last week. It was appraised at $105. Jim Brown, our ticket agent, is also in the boot and shoe business. Mr. Turner is very sick. Also Mrs. Zeke White.

Indiana News.

GREENSBURG, Jan. 31.—Daniel Rybolt committed suicide by hanging in his barn some time last night. Your correspondent visited the scene, about one-fourth of a mile southeast of town, this morning, and gathered the following facts: "About 7 o'clock last evening he said to his father that he thought he would go to church, and went out. He did not go to church, however, but spent the evening in company with his friend, W. H. Isgrigg about town until nine o'clock when they parted and went to their respective homes. Nothing more was heard of him until near daylight this morn, when his father went to the barn, and in the dim light of dawn saw him hanging, but did not recognize him until he called in some neighbors. He had taken a small hitching rein and made a slip knot, placed it about his neck, and tied the other end to a joist about eight or nine feet from the floor, and probably jumped from a box or ladder near by. His feet were resting on the floor, his knees not being more than ten inches from the floor. His hat was resting on his head, which was thrown a little back. Deceased was twenty-seven years old, a brick mason by trade, and one of the best workmen about our place. No cause is known for the commission of the act, but he had been despondent at times for a year past.

SKYMOOR, Feb. 2.—Alexander Wilcox who lives about four miles north of Free-town, recently found a piece of gold an inch square close to the Jackson and Brown county line. In ascending a hill he caught hold of a bush in order to assist himself up, and in doing so accidentally overturned a large rock, and in the hollow this made the nugget was found.

GREENSBURG, Feb. 3.—This community had hardly recovered from the shock occasioned by the suicide of Daniel Rybolt, last Friday night, when soon after 9 o'clock this morning word reached town that Ira Davison had shot and killed himself at the residence of his mother, about one mile east of town. An inquiry revealed the following: Davison was 23 years old, a good, industrious young man, of poor parentage, and well known in the country east of the city. Last night he attended the Baptist Church of which he was a member, and went home. This morning, in conversation with his mother and other friends, he said that this was no place for a poor man, and he wished he had the courage of Dan. Rybolt, and he would end his existence, for which language his mother gently reproved him. In a short time he went into his bed room and the report of a pistol soon called his friends there, when it was found that he had placed a small No. 22 cartridge pistol over his heart and fired. He sat on the edge of the bed for a few minutes but spoke not a word, and expired in about ten minutes. Deceased was a warm and intimate friend of Daniel Rybolt, and no doubt was much affected by his untimely end. No other cause can be assigned for the commission of the deed.

Effects of Bad Literature.

Indianapolis Journal. A few nights ago three boys, aged respectively eleven, twelve and thirteen, years, were arrested on the streets of New York on suspicion of being vagrants. One of them had a can of cooked oysters in his hand, which the others were helping him to eat. On investigation they proved to be runaways from Worcester, Massachusetts, where they had left good homes to go West in search of adventure, and especially to fight the Indians. They were supplied with revolvers, fishing-tackle and tobacco, and in their possession several dime novels of the regular blood and thunder stamp. The parents of the boys were notified, and they were sent back to their homes. Then, recently, another case of runaway boys occurred at Bloomington, this State. A fourteen year-old boy appeared at that place begging for food, whose appearance showed that he had seen better days. Being finally persuaded to tell his story, it appeared that he had ran away from a good home in Ohio, in company with another boy a little older than himself, their plan being to go West and kill Indians and buffalo. They managed to reach Vincennes, where they separated, the smaller boy entering the service of two professional tramps, who escorted him to Bloomington. These two boys, like others arrested in New York, were induced to run away from home by reading dime novels. These are sample cases of the effect of such reading. The country is flooded with such vile trash, and parents can not be too keenly on the alert against it. If they do not know of its existence they are culpably ignorant. If they do know of its existence and fail to guard their boys against it they are culpably negligent. Thousands of youthful minds are being inflamed, poisoned, and distorted by this class of reading, while scarcely a day passes that some lad is not lured away from home by the false and repulsive ideas thus acquired.

An Indian at San Diego, Cal., was told that a voice through the telephone was that of the Great Spirit, and when it said, "Give up those stolen horses," he immediately confessed he was a thief.

Close Quarters With an Alligator.

Pittsburg Herald. While William P. Neeld, of Hillsboro county, was walking in the woods recently, he heard the roar of an alligator and the scream of a lady. He ran out to the highway, and saw a nine-foot saurian, raised on its legs, muttering at a lady and her children. The reptile stood where the road crossed a small drain which ran from a lake into the Gulf of Mexico. Having no weapon but a knife, Mr. Neeld provided himself with a stick three or four feet long, and as thick as his wrist. On his approach the alligator showed fight. The man rounded it, so as to avoid a blow from its tail, and struck it a blow over the eyes. The reptile closed its eyes. And Mr. Neeld drove the blade of the knife in just behind the foreleg. It was a tender place. The alligator revived, and began to thrash with its tail. The man gave it another blow over the head, and followed the blow with half a dozen stabs. The reptile was then so far gone that he had no difficulty in cutting its throat. Mr. Neeld then accompanied the lady home. He returned within half an hour, and found the saurian in nearly as good trim as ever. His former treatment was repeated until the reptile gave up the ghost. Mr. Neeld cut off the head as a trophy. In severing the muscles of the neck, convulsions of the muscles of the whole body would take place. This made the alligator appear alive. He would move off, throw up his tail, and roll over and over; yet there was no absolute danger.

A Chicago man was told, when he registered at Council Bluffs hotel, that his wife was already there. He said that must be a mistake, as he had left her at home a few days before, and she had not said anything about a journey; but the clerk insisted that he knew her, and that he was in the house. The fact was that she had eloped.

Young Pelham, of Manorsville, Wis. desired to commit suicide. He swallowed poison in the presence of a young woman, in her own parlor; but she said that a scandal would ensue if he died there, and he obligingly took the antidote that she got for him. Soon afterward he drank poison in whisky at a bar; but the proprietor complained that a suicide in the place might lead to a revocation of the license. So Pelham submitted to the use of a stomach pump. His next and effectual effort was to hang himself.

Two miles of railroad have been built on the ice, crossing the St. Lawrence River at Montreal. The ties and stringers are laid flat, and the water is pumped between them to freeze, thus making a solid bed.

A Tennessee hunter fired at a bird, and winged two passengers in a distant railroad train.

Our citizens will remember the Fine entertainment given by the "Nip and Tuck" combination a short time ago. They return here Feb. 24th, at Opera House.

The Story of Lady Nithsdale.
Everybody has heard of the Tower of London. The London of to-day has risen around it from the ashes of the London of the past; generation after generation has been forgotten; customs have changed as completely as fashions; but the Tower is now, as of old, an object of interest that is half of fear, half of tenderness to all reading and thinking minds with human sympathy. Its "Traitor's Gate" has gaped and bristled in many a youthful dream, and its blood-stained "Hill" has risen like a nightmare upon the visions of tender students and lovers of romance. William Norman—England's conqueror, whose grasp closed on her forever—built those massive walls; so, then, like his soul, upon the fair face of the land his sword had won, and stamped into it a very spirit of sorrow and tyranny. A palace in its early days when palaces were raised on prisons and cemented with blood, it gradually sunk the palace in the prison, but kept its royal character, for it was made the prison of the enemies of kings and still the sons of kings.

The names of many of the prisoners in the tower of London are as familiar as household words. Taking them without regard to order—William Wallace, the golden haired hero of Scotland; Sir Thomas Moore, Anne Boleyn, Lady Jane Grey, Sir Walter Raleigh, the Earl of Essex—a long line of brave and generous men and women pass before the mental vision at its very name. Later on, less distinguished, but as blameless, sufferers take their places.

It was in the struggle of 1715 that Lord Nithsdale passed the grim threshold of the Tower. He had been "out" with the gallant Earl of Mar, and shared his ruin, together with his brother, Earls of Derwentwater, Camrath and Winton, and a number of Lords. All, save the Earl of Winton, were sentenced to death, and all efforts to soften or appease the rigor of their judges appeared useless. Wives and mothers, sisters and daughters crowded to the foot of the throne, appealed with the trembling lips of age, the beauty of youth, the helpless hand of infancy, to George I., and appeared in vain. Orders were sent to dispatch Derwentwater, Nithsdale and Kenmore immediately—the other to be respited for a short time, but certainly to die.

It was the last night of life to Nithsdale. In the gray of the dawn, sweet yet solemn hour when earth seems more at peace, while it waits for the blessing of the Lord upon a new day, he was to die. Lord Nithsdale buried his face in his hands and strove to reduce to order the teeming horrors of his brain and to summon to his aid the holy lessons of his ancestral faith. He knelt humbly and reverently before the only Judge he over feared, and found him less Judge than Father. His thoughts turned to his home, his people, his long line of ancestors whose glory and whose strength had been his from his birth, and oh! his wife! His wife and his sweet love life. What an end to such dreams as theirs had been! His bonny darling! Oh, to see her once more!

Plainer and plainer grew the remembrance of her face and her form, keener and keener the longing for her, more and more maddening the thought of the few brief hours they had belonged to each other. Then came a sudden, sharp, grating noise across the stillness of the night. Lord Nithsdale started. Was it a knock? Was God so near? Again earth and its ties were swept away, as he rose at the opening of the door.

A gleam of light and a moving shadow; that was all. The door clanged to suddenly, and the bolts grated harshly. The shadow stood still in the waning moonlight.

"You seek me, friend in all kindness, I trust," said Lord Nithsdale. "My time is short, too short for aught of idle meaning."

The shadow moved not, but a smooth, eager, gasping sob broke from it. Lord Nithsdale hurriedly crossed the narrow cell and laid his hand on the dark mantle. It was thrown back from the pale face and tear wasted eyes of the Countess of Nithsdale.

"My husband! My own dear lord!" she cried, softly, extending her arms to him. "I have come to save you. Our time is short, indeed, and I have even shortened it by my weak yielding to the feelings the dear sight of you awakened. I never, never thought to see your face again." And she clung closer and closer to him as his trembling lips pressed her in agony of love and pain.

"But we must hasten," she exclaimed, suddenly withdrawing herself from his fond arms. "No more, Nithsdale: no more! Until we meet in happier hours."

"In happier hours!" he interrupted. "Alas, dear love, I have but one to live, I fear me. Thou hast come in good time, sweetheart. I would not have missed thee—nay! even though thou makest death more bitter."

"Hush, hush, my lord! I have come to save thee from all the bitterness—I will tell thee quickly. Thou must heed—the king thou knowest will show no mercy. We have pleaded for thee, ay!

night and day thy mother and I have wearily the king as one wearies heaven with prayers—only heaven is more merciful, and now I have come to save thee. I must, I will! Only be thou my loving and indulgent lord, as thou hast ever been. Heaven bless thee! See! thou must lay aside thy ruff and thy doublet—burnedly undoing them with trembling yet skillful fingers. "So. Now, thou must wear these—quick, quick; the time is short!"

"But stay, sweetheart!" said the Earl, bewildered and credulous, as she strove to adjust her dainty coif and veil upon his flowing locks. "Thou canst not hope to send me forth in thy robes. Remember this is the Tower!"

"Thou hast friends, Nithsdale! Thou hast friends! Ask me no more—nay, do not stop me. Let me but pull this curl a little nearer—it is the very color of my own—and fasten the cloak about thee. Now, bend thy head as if thou hadst but just left me to die the death!"

"And so I may," he cried, "the king will stop at nothing. Thy head may be the forfeit. Better let it go! I can but die and end it."

"Nithsdale," she entreated, as he made an attempt to loosen the mantle, "hear me, dear love! I am in no danger. And if I were thick of it! Thou art a noble of old and gallant line, and it may do with thee. Thou art my husband, and thinkest thou I would purchase my safety from an imaginary danger at thy certain peril? Go, go! God bless thee! I will join thee soon. Thou wilt find friends, and thou wilt know them by this token: 'The day dawns.' Now speed thee! Bend thy head!"

She hurriedly folded his doublet around her and sank into the deepest corner of the cell, as the door grated on its hinges. Lord Nithsdale passed through the frowning arch, and followed the jailer in a tumult of feeling. Hope, fear, love anxiety, a confused sense of shame, yet instinctive adherence to his wife's hurried instructions as to the manner of wearing the disguise, prevented his noting the singular silence of his conduct until it was broken by another voice close at hand.

"The day dawns, I think," said the new comer.

"Ay! The lark will be up ere long," answered the jailer, gruffly, and paused.

Lord Nithsdale was quick to understand. Without a word, he followed the first speaker through the winding passages and narrow stairways dark as night, until they opened into an open court, where the cold March wind struck chill upon his prison-weakened frame, and it was no mock tremor that thrilled him, as he crouched with hidden face, on the others silently offered arm. A brief whispered parley, an exclamation of pity from the guard, and the door flew open. Ten minutes more and they were without the walls.

"The day dawns," said a voice that he knew.

"Ay! The lark will be up ere long," answered his companion quietly. "Will your ladyship be pleased to take horse now, or go farther and rest?"

The Earl answered briefly "As you will," and heard, still with bowed head, the slow tramp of steeds. But his companion hurried him rapidly along the narrow streets of old London, and threw him suddenly into a dark, arched passage.

"Heaven be praised! We are safe! Here is gear better suited for a man's riding than that we wear. Now, mount and ride! Remember the password, and thou art safe."

He was gone as quickly as flash. The Earl, wrapped in a servant's mantle of course, brown cloth, and wearing a common slouch hat, stepped leisurely from the arch and sprang into the saddle of the waiting horse. The leader of it rode close by his side, but in silence, and putting spurs to his horse, dashed ahead. The Earl followed. The day was breaking, and the hour of execution had come when he turned in his saddle to cast one look at the vanishing spires of the city lying, like a shadow, far behind him. He was saved.

When they came to his cell at the appointed time, they found in his place the senseless form of a lovely woman, folded in his doublet and crouching in the darkest corner of the dungeon. The long curls of her hair fell over her white face. The warden stepped hastily to her side, and parted them with tender touch.

"It is the Countess of Nithsdale," he said, briefly.

"Is she dead?" questioned a bystander.

"No; poor creature. It would be better if she were."

But it was better just as it was. King George was merciful to one so innocent and so brave. After a few days confinement, Lady Nithsdale was free to join her husband on the hospitable shores of France and to enjoy the life she had saved.

Colonel Nelson Trussler Drops Dead in an Indianapolis Theater.
INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., January 29.—This evening at the Grand Opera-house, just as the curtain was about to be rung up on Gus Williams' play of Our German Senator, people in the theater were attracted to a startling incident in the centre aisle, where it was seen that a man had fallen heavily forward, striking a chair in the parquet. A woman's shriek rang through the building with appalling distinctness. "What is the matter?" "Who is it?" were questions asked on every side. It was Colonel Nelson Trussler, United States Prosecuting Attorney. He had fallen dead, and the ladies who were with him were his wife and daughter.

They were immediately removed from the theater to their home in a distant part of the city, followed by a number of sympathizing friends. The body of the dead Colonel was carried back into the lobby and a physician was immediately brought to his side, but there was no indication of motion about the heart.

The news spread rapidly over the city, and a large crowd assembled. An undertaker was sent for, and preparations were at once made to remove the body to the home it had left in apparent good health but a short time before. The situation was a startling one. Within the theater the commotion soon subsided, the curtain went up and the play begun.

The actors, and Mr. Williams most of all, seemed to begin the entertainment with the shadow of death resting on their spirits. It was an awful reception, but they succeeded in soon mastering the situation, and before the corpse was removed the immense throng was heard responding to the hits of the play with rounds of laughter, and clapping of hands.

The deceased has been suffering, it appears, for some weeks with indigestion and heart disease, and to these facts his death is attributed.

No man was better known in the State. During the war he served with distinction as Colonel of the Eighty-fourth Indiana Infantry. In 1868 he was elected Secretary of State on the Republican ticket, and removed to this city from Connersville. In 1872 he succeeded General Van J. Browne as Prosecuting Attorney in this Federal District. While an uncompromising Stalwart in politics, his social qualities made him universally liked by all who knew him, regardless of political sentiments. He was born in 1823, and leaves a wife and three children one of whom, a son, is in the Government service.

It is a remarkable fact that during the war Mr. Williams was a drummer-boy in the Colonel's regiment, and it was out of regard for the memory of so deserving and successful a man, that Trussler visited the theater to-night. The deceased was a prominent Mason, and his funeral, which is set for Sunday at ten o'clock, will call together a large number of the fraternity from all parts of the State.

The suddenness of his death, the circumstances under which it occurred and its peculiar surroundings told with fearful effect upon the family.

SHOW THIS TO YOUR DOCTOR.
CLEVELAND, Nov. 1, 1878.
Editors "Wachter am Erie," Cleveland, Ohio.

GENTLEMEN: Allow me, as an old reader of your valued journal, herewith to send you a few lines, which please insert in your next issue. I will vouch for their truth, and know by their publication a great deal of good will be accomplished. Having been a reader of your paper for many years, I hope you will grant my request.

For twelve years I had suffered, from time to time, terribly with rheumatism, to such an extent that I was unable to move about, and lost the use of my limbs. I tried every thing recommended to effect a cure, consulted some of the most prominent physicians, and expended large sums of money, hoping to find relief, but with out any success. Glancing over the columns of the "Wachter," I read about the St. Jacobs Oil, and the many cures it had effected. Having been disappointed so many times, I lost all faith in my remedy, the St. Jacobs Oil included, until I saw one day that it had cured a well-known citizen with whom I am acquainted. Other parties fully endorsed the value and wonderful power of the Oil, telling me that it had cured them of different ailments in a short time. This brought me to a conclusion. I said to myself, "Schweizer, fifty cents won't break you!" so I went to my drugist, Mr. Beck, bought a bottle of the Oil, and must now confess the result was truly wonderful. I used it every two hours, and found relief immediately upon the first application, and pain ceased entirely after a few more applications. Fearing a new attack, I remained in bed and continued to use the remedy every three hours. All pain having left me, I arose from my bed and walk downstairs without any trouble.

Since that time I have been able to follow my occupation, and feel no pains or inconvenience, however disagreeable the weather may be. Having thoroughly tested the St. Jacobs Oil, I can conscientiously recommend it to all afflicted with Rheumatism. Fifty cents is a small expense when the services for so trifling an outlay are considered. If I was one thousand miles from all human habitation, I should, nevertheless, procure this remedy and keep it always in my house.

A Neat Job.
CHICAGO, Jan. 27.—Three well known Chicago thieves were to-day arrested in this city for the skillful piece of bank work done at Kankakee, Ill., last Wednesday. That evening about nine o'clock four masked men entered the building occupied partly by Henry Danforth as a private banking establishment. They went upstairs into a little room above the bank, where a cabinet-maker named O. L. Webber, was at work at his bench. They quickly overpowered and securely bound and gagged him before he could offer any resistance. They then took him with them downstairs into the bank, where they at once began operations upon the money vault. They did their work with skill and dispatch, and in a few moments had blown open the door and secured about $4300 in cash, with which they immediately decamped, leaving Webber gagged and bound on the floor. About one o'clock in the morning he succeeded in removing the gag from his mouth, but it was not until nine o'clock that he could make the robbery known.

The bank robbers were not seen to leave the town, but a little inquiry among persons who had been on the Gilman train soon established their identity. The Chicago police were notified to be on the lookout for them, and to-day arrested a trio of well known thieves as the perpetrators of the robbery. They are James Bird, a notorious "con," the man who was arrested in December 1878, for swindling, and held to the Criminal Court in bonds of $2,000; Bid Kelley, who was arrested last May for larceny, and Marion alias Tilly Van Hessler, an ex-member of the Albatross gang of safe blowers. They were taken to Kankakee to-night.

Chris. Dean's Heroic Act.
FRANKLIN, Pa., Jan. 26.—One day last week, owing to the mistake of a telegraph operator, two freight trains on the Philadelphia and Erie Railroad came into collision near Cameron Mills. Chris. Dean was an engineer on one of the trains. Both he and his fireman were fastened beneath the wreck of their locomotive. Dean was held by one of his legs, which was caught by the fire box of the engine. His fireman was nearly buried under the pieces of the wreck. When the men were discovered, Dean had managed to reach his tool box and he was making every endeavor to extricate the fireman. When he saw the men who had come to their aid, Dean shouted:

"Help poor Jim! Never mind me!"

The fireman was extricated as soon as possible, in an unconscious condition. Dean was then taken out. It was then ascertained that during all the time he had been working to relieve his fireman the box was burning his leg to a crisp. It was literally roasted from the knee down, and had to be amputated. The fireman died, but it is thought that the brave engineer will recover.

The Ladies' Favorite.
Among the many thousands of ladies who have used Dr. Price's Favorite Prescription, and pronounced it their favorite remedy, because so efficient in the diseases and weaknesses peculiar to women, are many who are favorably known in the world of letters, as well as artists, musicians, and a whole host of names from the brilliant ranks of wealth and fashion. It is pre-eminently the ladies' Favorite Prescription, its use, while being far more safe and efficient, exempting them from those painful, caustic operations, and the wearing of those mechanical contrivances made like Peter Pindar's razor—seller's razors—to sell, rather than to call.

How to grow Fat.—Just now when so many fat people are trying to grow lean, we would suggest that it would be a good idea for the lean ones to try and grow fat. To do this keep the bowels and kidneys regulated with Mott's Liver Pills, and your digestion will be good and you will grow fat rapidly.

MRS. PARTINGTON SAYS
Don't take any of the quack nostrums, as they are regimental to the human system, but put your trust in Hop Bitters, which will cure general dilapidation, costive habits and all comic diseases. Regulate first the stomach, second to liver; especially the first, so as to perform their functions perfectly and you will remove at least nineteen twentieths of all the ills that mankind is heir to, in this or any other climate. Hop Bitters is the only thing that will give perfect healthy natural action to these two organs.—Maine Farmer.

AN OLD DOCTOR'S ADVICE.
It was this: "Trust in God and keep your bowels open." For this purpose many an old doctor has advised the habitually costive to take Kidney-Wort, for no other remedy so effectually overcomes this condition, and that without the distress and griping which other medicines cause. It is a radical cure for piles. Don't fail to use it.

Kidney Wort is nature's remedy for Kidney and Liver diseases Piles and constipation.

Two brothers at Evergreen, Ala. were not only alike in looks, but so equal in strength that a wrestling match was arranged as a test. This did not settle the question, however, for one was thrown on his head and killed at the beginning of the test.

A NEW KIND OF WATCH CASE.
Now because it is only within the last few years that it has been improved and brought to the rescue of every one in principle because the first invention was made and the first patent taken out nearly twenty years ago, and cases made at that time and worn ever since, are nearly as good as new. Read the following, which is only one case of many hundreds, your customer can tell of similar ones:
Massachusetts, May 25th, 1878. I have a customer who has owned one of Boss' Patent Cases fifteen years and I knew it two years before he got it, and it now appears good for ten years longer.

A farmer from Floyd Township, came into this office on Thursday and asked us to warn the people against buying recipes for making patent burning fluids. The Indianapolis Journal of the 5th inst. says: Female brass bands are not unknown, and the country has been treated to the spectacle of a preambulating female base ball club, but the neighboring town of Greencastle, in this State, has led off in a new enterprise. This is a military company, which has been formed by the lady students of Asbury University, numbering about forty. The Journal is pleased to record this fact as indicative of the opening of a new field for women.

The existence of a decidedly belligerent element in the female sex has long been an open secret, but it has never had full development nor fair play. This has been due partly to the prejudice among men against women acting as soldiers and partly to their own unwillingness to assert their own rights in this regard.

The movement at Greencastle shows that the young women in the college there are no longer to be deterred by these considerations. The formation of a military company is a practical and effective way of asserting their claims to be soldiers, and of testing the quality and quantity of the military element that exists in the sex. Citizen-soldier organizations are greatly promotive of true patriotism, and have always proved nurseries for good offices in time of war.

If the Greencastle company addresses itself with proper zeal to the duty of drilling, we may hope that it will be able to furnish some highly accomplished officers in time for the next war. It occurs to us, however to make one suggestion: It was at Greencastle that some of the faculty of the University were recently shocked by the stage costume of a gifted and popular female elocutionist. In view of this experience, we advise the amiable and worthy young women of the military company to be careful what uniform they adopt.

Dear Sir: The "Brattin watch" from your establishment in Greencastle, Ind., and presented to me by employers of the Adams Express Company, at their convention at New Orleans, in April, 1878, is chaste, regular and reliable, and together with the magnificent chain accompanying it is an outfit that any man may keep and appreciate.

The watch purchased from you in March, '79, for my daughter, is a gem of beauty and a reliable time keeper, the worthy ornament of any lady who might have been so fortunate as to obtain it; and both watches fully sustain the reputation of the proprietor of the "popular Jewelry Establishment" of Indiana.
